In February last we wrote on the importance of instituting an official inquiry into the cause of all fires occurring in the colony.

From the last received home papers we learn that Mr. H. Spensley, M.P., has introduced a Bill into the House of Commons providing:

that in cases where the loss or damage from fire exceeds £50, and the origin of the fire is with or without a jury. The powers of the Commissioner will resemble those of a coroner: he shall take the evidence in writing, and report to the Home Secretary within a fortnight. The Commissioner will have power to enter and inspect premises, and to grant certificates of expenses to witnesses and jurymen. His own services will be paid by fees out of the rates. The Pall Mull Gazette remarks that :- "The original suggestion that the inquiry-should be held by a coroner was absurd; the whole tendency in similar legislation is rightly in the direction technical knowledge." The subject is one which the local Fire Insurance Companies would, we think, do well to take into serious consideration with a view to promoting similar legislation here to that proposed by Mr. Spenster at home. In Landon the percentage of fires of which the causes were unknown wis last year twenty-

Says the Daily News: - "This seems to be the execution season in China. From Canton our correspondent writes describing the cutting to pieces, by the Ling Chih process, of two parrioides. They received thirty outs with the knife before it was stuck into their hearts, after which they were beheaded. Two days afterwards two pirates were beheaded, and then thirteen criminals from an adjoining district. These small parties are, from what our correspondent says, to be succeeded by large batches. The thrilling music of that meledious boll, which formerly sounded with so much double benefit, at once bringing good artierratic vigour, will be pleasingly missed.

> On Thursday a disturbance occurred at Miller's Point, Kowloon, where Messrs. Blackhead & Co. are building some godowns. Some of the head coolies who had been engaged upon the: work had a dispute and were turned out, and they tried to work a combination against Messrs. Blackhead & Co. to stop the works or get their terms. Men were got to do the work, however, and then the head coolies and their men went upon the ground and tried to stop the work, but four of the head men were arrested and were vesterday brought up before Mr. Mackean at the Police Court. They were required to find a surety of $25 each for their good behaviour for twelve months, and in default of doing so they were committed to gaol."

The crews for the scratch four-cared race mentioned in the Daily Press a few days ago were picked up at the Recreation Club yesterday. There was found to be just enough names down for four crews when the entries, closed, and the result of the ballot for four strokes was that Goodlad, Glass, Sampson, and Grace were elected. The transformation was complete: not a vestige of the "supreme Caucasira race" was left. Her physician was sent for in alarm and haste. On his arrival he laughed immoderately and said: "Madame, you are not ill, you are a chemical product. You are no longer a woman, but a sulphide. It is not now a question of medicinal treatment, but a simple chemical reaction. I shall subject you to a bath of sulphuric soid diluted with water. The seid will have the honour of combining with you; it will take up the sulphur, the metal will produce a 'sulphate,' and we shall find as a 'precipitate' a very pretty weman." The good-natured physician went through with his reaction, and the belle was restored to her membership with the white race.

The Frankfurter Zeitung publishes, on the authority of a Manich correspondent, a communication which (the Times remarks) sheds some light on the statements lately in circulation about the King of Bavaria. It says that a very active correspondence has been lately carried on between the "Royal Princes" and the King; the result of which was a long interview between Baron von Lutz, the Bavarian Prime Minister, and Horr von Schneider, the Royal architect. The effect of this interview has been to stop all building operations at Hohenschwap. gan and at Herren-Chiemsee, which King Louis had purposed making a Bavarian Versailles. Doubtless all the building operations in progress at the five or eir other castles and huntinglodges will also be stopped at once. By the term "Royal Princes" the King's uncle, Duke Luitpold, must be meant, who is the only member of the Royal family, in a position to interfere with the King, his brother, Prince Otho, lead. ing a most retired life, on account of his health. Duke Luitpeld is next in order of succession, and under the Barvarian family law would have the right to interfere against waste of the common patrimony of the Royal family.

Count Andor Széechenyi, jun., has been arrested in Vienna nuder dramatic circumstances. A couple of years ago the count, who is a young man of 22, married the daughter of a Russian landed proprietor, the lady receiving a handsome dowry from her father. The union was not o happy one, and the young people separated. Shortly afterwards the countess gave birth to a son. She resided with her child at the house of her mother in Vienna, where the count took lodgings in a furnished hotel. A short time ago his wife, accompanied by her mother and child, paid him a visit at his request. He then insisted upon the child remaining with him, and the ladies had no alternative but to submit. M. Korokossoff, the father of the countess, was at once telegraphed for, and on his arrival he secured the services of a detective. The other night the count made his appearance at the residence of his wife and her parents, and, in an excited tone, asked to see the countess, threatening violence in case of refusal. The detective played a leading part in the scene that followed, and succeeded in taking a londed revolver from the count. He than accompanied him to the police station, where the count declared that his intention was merely to frighten his mother-in-law. Eventually at his wife's pressing request, he was released, after pledging his word to molest her no further. But her father appealed to the public prosecutor, and the count was again taken into custody.

WE SHOULD BLOT OUT DISEASE IN ITS EARLY STAGES. The disease commences with a slight derange.

ment of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time liver, pancreas, and in fact the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:-Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating ! Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and TO. 2, MORRISON HILL. teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides and back? Is there a fullness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging P Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after esting, accompanied by flatulance or belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These ROOM. various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against the latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly Union Insurance Society of Canton, Limited- and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a oure. PRIVATEERING. Most men will remember the enthusiasin with which, as hove, they read of the exploits of the privateers equipped by both sides during the Peninsular War. Probably the sea | stories of Captain Marrent and others have much to answer for in this particular. In these the hero is always engaged in the performance of some deeds of daring, and his Jack Easy himself sailed under letters of in the opinion of many people, far from immarque when he went out to the Mediterranean to bring home his bride. It is easy Declaration of Paris, and of resuming her should fire the boyish imagination, and cause to understand that the tales of " cutting out." the youth of the male sex to regard the privateersman as a hero—a legitimate deaccudant; of those other champions of romance, Robin Hood and Little John, the Percy and no character to speak of; a man whose busianything approaching to hard knocks except when they were absolutely forced upon him. However, to take this view is, perhaps to safer to regard the privateersman of the early part of the present century as a man whose he would fight well enough upon occasionbut filling his own pockets by despoiling his privateering has never done.—Globe. give security for his good behaviour, was at a least as likely to keep his conduct within the strict limits of the law as anyone else.

The subject may at any moment prove of importance; and might have attained very immediate importance if Greece, as, being no party to the Treaty of Paris, by which -" privateering is and remains abolished," had found it advisable to attempt to prev on Turkish commerce, such as it is. Such action Agency during my Absence from Hongkong. would have provided a test case in international law, which it is well to consider before it actually arises.

The idea which lies at the foundation of privateering is very old, and is, in short, that norron of reprisal which, as Blackstone saws, " seems dictated by nature herself." Nestor, in the "Iliad," tells us of the cattle which he | took from the Epcians as reprisals in satisfaction of a prize won by his father Neleus at | STARR & Co.'s well known, best roller made the Elian games; and the fundamental conception which lies at the root of privateering is that of an attempt on the part of a private TRY IT. individual to recover viet armis the value of property of which he has been forcibly deprived by the subjects of a State with which his country is not at war. The effect of this was, of course, to make a man judge in his own cause, and this led to the recognition of the necessity of the supreme authority exercising a control over such attempts—in other, words, to the issue of what are technically known as letters of marque and reprisal, "words," as Blackstone says, quoting from Dufresne, "used as synonymous, and signifying, the latter a taking in return, the former the passing the frontiers in order to such taking." This clearly points to the authorisation of reprisals on land as well as by sea; but in this shape, in which they formed part of the customary law of nations, they have long been disused, and in their modern form they have been omployed to encourage merchants and other to fit out privateers, or armed ships, in time of war, the bait held out being the value of the prizes to be captured, which, without such letters of marque, would, by virtue of the prerogative, become a droit of Admiralty, and belong, not to the captors, but to the Crown.

It is, perhaps, hardly generally recognised that England owes a deep debt of gratitude to her privateers. In the days of Elizabeth and the first of the Stuarts privateer and bucaneer, as we now use the words, seem to have been almost convertible terms, and pirate to have been often hardly distinguishable from both. Walter Ruleigh, Humphrey Gilbert, who went down in mid-Atlantic in the Delight, having been last seen sitting in the stern of his tiny craft with a book in his hand, and urging his men by saving, " Courage, my lads; we are as near he ven by sea as by land;" the immaculate Sir Richard Grenville, per dozen, and GIN in White Glass Bottles, whose great fight for the honour of Eugland Schiedim Schnapps, Pomeranzen Bitters. has been described by Lord Tennyson; Sir DRIPSTONE FILTER, SOURKROUT and RED Francis Drake, greatest robber of all-all Cabbage in Jars. these mon, as well as the champion privateer of fiction, Amyas Leigh, and scores of other worthies of the period, were simply privateers when they were not pirates. The defeat of the Spanish Armada was, in the main, effected by privateers, and by themalone; the vessels that beat the formidable warshins of Philip of Spain were light merchantmen, many of which were in the habit of carrying rich cargoes to Virginia and, perchance, making the best haul they could out of a bullion-freighted Spanish-galleon if luck threw one in their way while crossing the Atlantic. It was not the weight of metal. but the superior handiness of the vessels, the seamanship of the commanders, and, above all, the bulldog British pluck of the men behind the guns, that made such adventures possible; and the last-named is a factor in a fight that we are far too much inclined [HAMPAGNE "MONOPOLE. to forget in these latter days when we estimate our naval strength according to materiel and think nothing at all of the per-

Two skinny Frenchmen, one Portugee, One jelly Englishman will lick 'em, all three: And the average British sailor is of opinion -that, if ever the necessity arises, the old adage will still hold true. At any rate, if we admit, as we must, that small English craft had the knack of attacking lofty, richly-laden Spanish galleons; that the seanty Englishnot yet British-crew would boldly board the stranger, and lower the proud standard of - Spain in the face of numerical appearority, it must also fairly be said that it was well for England that commercial enterprise took this form under the last of the Tudors, and that it was to the lessons of daring and self-reliance, the contempt of danger which were tearned in this hard school of constant fight. ing that England owes her independence to.

A ridiculous misconception on the subject of privateering has met with widespread acceptance. It is assumed that a State may, by the law of nations, issue letters of marque to any individuals of any nationality, that any small inland Power, without a single mile of coast line, may empower the swashbucklers of two hemispheres to fight on. - her behalf, and secure for them the treatment and privileges of legitimate combitants. A vessel fitted out under such circumstances would be a pirate, and not a privateer, and her craw, if captured, would be liable to the penalties of piracy. It is only necessary to look at the origin of privateering to see that this is the case. How can a State authorise aliens to make reprisals the essence of which ; is that they are in retaliation for injuries in-si flicted on that State's subjects? During the Crimean War, Englandabstained from fitting out privateers just as, to please her French ally, she consented, to quote an Order in Council of March, 1854, "to waive a part of the belligerent rights appertaining to her by INDEX, by which the date of any event can be the law of nations" by accepting for the time found at a glance. the principle that the neutral flag covered the .cargo-a principle against which, up to that time, this country had contended in the most persistent and determined manner. At the Conference of Paris, in 1856, Lord Clarendon, Count Walewski's invitation, consented to make this waiver perpetual, and first rule of the Declaration of Paris, to which was attached the name of Lord Clarendon as the representative of England, abolished privateering. It was this Rule which prevented the United States from adhering to the Declaration, and it is perhaps worthy of note that when war broke out between Chili, which had accepted the Declaration, and Spain, which had not, the former State found it meassary to its own interests to reassort its maritimo rights, and did so with the full approval of all the other Powers. Should England ever find herself involved in a life and death struggle, it is, sity of withdrawing her adhesion from the old liberty of action. It may be as well, and sharp fighting) and hairbreadth escapes, therefore, to remember that a mystery surrounds the authority on which Lord Clarendon | acted; that he himself admitted in the House of Lords that he and his colleagues "had Policies at current rates, payable either here, not confined athemselves to the strict limits of their attributions;" and that the Declarathe Douglas, and the other cattle-raiders of tion has never received the assent of the the Scottish border. It would be more rea- Legislature. The Crown may make treaties somble to look upon him as a somewhat with foreign Powers without the consent of Policies issued for long or short periods ignoble fellow, with, in nine cases out of ten, Parliament, but the prerogative in this matter does not extend to making any treaty men, but who, as a rule, carefully avoided The Declaration of Paris introduced an alteration into maritime law as it had hitherto existed, and Blackstone distinctly tells us that maritime law is part and parcel of the law rush, into the other extreme, and it may be of England. In order, therefore, that this country may be bound by any treaty affecting that law, the treaty must have received primary business was not fighting-though the consent of Parliament, which the instrument by which England agreed to abolish Chinese at Current Rates.
